Spotlight on Grace: Works by Edna Lawrence on Display

When you come in for worship this Sunday, please be sure to visit the reception area of The Pavilion to enjoy the nine original pen and ink drawings by Edna Lawrence that we've just installed along this curved wall.

Edna Lawrence (1898-1987) taught at RISD for more than 50 years (1922-1974), and founded the school's Nature Lab which now bears her name. Both locally and through her extensive travels, she amassed a natural history collection of more than 25,000 specimens that continue to inspire students today. Edna Lawrence's renderings of motifs from the interior and exterior of Grace Church were created for the purpose of embellishing our Sunday bulletins and other communications, and they likewise remain in frequent use today.

All of us here at Grace Church would like to express our profound gratitude to artist and RISD professor Andrew Raftery, not only for his faithful stewardship of Grace Church's archive of Edna Lawrence drawings and printing blocks over many years, but also for his generous gift of time and effort in selecting the pieces for this permanent exhibit and for framing them so beautifully. [Photo at right: At his studio in Grace Church, Andrew Raftery displays Grace's Edna Lawrence collection to a RISD student.]

We also thank the several parishioners who kindly contributed to this effort to offset the cost of the frames. Theirs is a lasting gift to enhance the beauty of our new space, and we are sure that parishioners and guests alike will find much enjoyment in viewing these works that were themselves inspired by Grace Church.
